

SUCCESS OF PARLEY WITH TURKS DOUBTED

PEACE TREATY LOCKED UPON AS A MERE TRUCE AT PARIS

Greeks Are Purchasing Arms And Munitions to Equip Their Armies and Make Up Losses They Suffered During Retreat From Asia Minor.

Paris.—While the Lausanne Conference has assembled to bring to final settlement the last series of wars that were part and parcel of the great European conflict, there is still much speculation as to whether peace or war will be the outcome of that conference. In many quarters it is felt that if a peace treaty is signed it will be in effect a mere truce.

On the one hand it is known the Greeks already are seeking loans whereby they may be able to equip their army and make up for munition losses which they suffered during the retreat in Asia Minor. The Greeks feel that if they hold Saloniki it must be by their own hands. They have before them the lesson of the manner in which the Allies gave a large portion of Thrace to the Turks.

On the other hand, it is known that the Turks are, for the moment, short of powder. While they are endeavoring to conclude and maintain peace so far as concerns Europe, if it should appear to be necessary to their new national interests they would not hesitate to use force of arms to back up what they feel to be their rights.

However, such a condition is not embarrassing to the Turks, who are aware that a large number of Russian munition works are actively engaged in the making of heavy guns and powder. Whether the Russians will be able to sell to the Turks the large quantities of powder needed in modern warfare is a question, but munition experts point out that the Turks doubtless would be able to purchase from other sources if the Russians felt they might need the supplies for their own purposes.

NEWBERRY LEAVES SENATE

Defeat of Colleague is Factor in Decision of Michigan Man Resigning

Detroit, Mich.—Senator Truman H. Newberry, Republican, resigned his seat in the United States Senate. His resignation was accepted by Governor Alex. J. Groesbeck, who announced he had not decided on a successor.

Mr. Newberry's resignation ended a stormy career fraught with Court actions, recriminations, moves by the Senate to unseat him, and finally by the defeat of his colleague from Michigan, Senator Charles E. Townsend, Republican, who attributed his own defeat to his defense of Newberry.

Mr. Newberry also said he was prompted to resign by the rebuke given to Senators who voted to seat him, at the last election, and the fact that in the new Senate a move to expel undoubtedly would pass.

Refugees Boil Grass

Washington.—Starving refugees on islands of the Aegean Sea are in need of more than 100 tons of flour daily to sustain life and should have 100,000 blankets and immense quantities of shoes and material for clothing. The Red Cross was advised by D. O. Hubbard, a Y. M. C. A. representative at Athens, who has just completed a tour of the islands. Mr. Hubbard reported that on one island he found refugees living on locust pods, while at another point they were boiling grass which goats refused to eat.

War on Barbary Bush

Columbus, O.—Seventy-five members from thirteen spring wheat states, in attendance at the second annual meeting of the Conference for the Prevention of Grain Rust, at St. Paul, unanimously adopted a resolution urging Congress to appropriate $500,000 for continuing the war on the common barbary bush next year, according to L. J. Taber, director of agriculture, and A. E. Anderson, director of grain marketing, who represented Ohio at the convention.

"Earl" Starts to Prison

Charlevoix, Mich.—Alfred J. Walker Griez, self-styled "Earl of Dunblane," left in the custody of an officer for the state prison at Jackson, following conviction of larceny by embezzlement of money paid him for stocks. Worn and haggard, his suave manner gone, the former financial wizard, whose checkered career of stock promotions stretched across the continent, spent his last day in the Charlevoix County Jail in frequent conferences with "Sara," his "American Countess."

Sixty Persons Drown

Mexicali, Lower Cal.—More than 60 persons drowned when a boat capsized while a landing was being attempted at La Bomba, 60 miles south of here, on the Gulf of California, according to word received here.

KIWANIS CHARTER PARTY A CROWNING SUCCESS

The Berea Kiwanis Charter Party held in the Community Room of the Union church building on Wednesday evening, November 22, was a gala occasion, and one that will stand out as a mile stone in the record of the progress of Berea.

The local Kiwanis chiefs and Kiwanis queens assembled en masse and received visiting warriors from the neighboring tribes of Winchester and Irvine-Ravenna.

In anticipation of their meeting, the ladies of the W. C. A. had prepared a bountiful repast, which was spread most artistically in the midst of a gorgeous decorating of pot ferns and chrysanthemums.

Owing to a late arrival of the evening train, District Gov. Hal Mould did not arrive in time to participate in the patriotic opening which always features Kiwanis gatherings, but the "Big Chief" did the local "Braves" proud when it came to "Elbow and Molar Calisthenics."

Gov. Mould, in his presentation address, stressed the necessity of faithful adherence to the principles of Kiwanis and recounted, briefly, the remarkable growth of Kiwanis since its birth in Detroit in 1914. At first slowly, but as the spirit of fair dealing and the application of the principles of the Golden Rule began to be recognized as its chief aim, the club began to grow by leaps and bounds, until today there are 870 clubs in the U. S. and Canada with a membership of approximately 75,000.

In accepting the charter, Kiwanian M. E. Vaughn, President of the Berea Club, expressed the gratitude of the club and assured the Governor that Berea Kiwanians accept the responsibility of promulgating the high ideals for which it stands.

Kiwanian Karl T. Vaughn, in an address on "Kiwanis in Berea," explained the peculiar need of such a club in Berea, and suggested ways of meeting these needs.

Kiwanian "Jimmie" Reinhardt deplored the fact that the only time when man can be said to have been free was that time when the human race was a bachelor and its name was Adam.

The club is indebted to Miss Dorothy Hollinger for her delightful reading, and to all those who assisted in the entertainment.

Attendance prizes were awarded to Miss Virginia Gibbs, Mrs. Eleanor Frost and Mrs. C. N. McAllister.

Responding for visiting clubs, Kiwanian Howard M. Hughes, of Winchester, said that acquaintance promoted better understanding, and that very often when you are tempted to call a man names when he crowds you off the road, a little chat with the man may develop the fact that he's almost human.

Kiwanian Roy Agee, in his usual inimitable way, declared for a return to prewar standards of morals, and suggested that with our charter we had been handed a most efficient weapon with which to accomplish our ideal.

CURED OF DEAFNESS IN AN AIRPLANE

(The Aurora Beacon-News)

August S. Harris, of Chicago, who recently was cured of deafness by riding in an airplane, is in Aurora at Hotel Aurora. He is a representative of the S. A. Rider company.

"When I came out of the army I was stone deaf," Harris said today. "Physicians told me I would never hear again. I conceived the idea of riding in an air plane as I heard it had helped others. When I went up on the first trip I couldn't hear the ticking of a watch placed at my ear. When I came down, one hour and 15 minutes later, after having risen to an altitude of 15,000 feet, I was able to hear mother, whom I called on the phone. I am taking a flight every five days now and expect in a short time to be completely cured so that it will no longer be necessary to go up."

PASSENGER WRECK AT RICHMOND STATION

The Richmond railroad station was the scene of a train wreck yesterday about 1 o'clock when No. 35 from Cincinnati derailed just as it was pulling into the station.

According to reports from Richmond the engine and coal tender both left the rails and turned cross ways on the track.

All of the passenger coaches remained intact and no one was injured.

We Thank Thee, Lord!

"For all thy ministries—
For morning mist and gently falling dew,
For summer rains, for winter ice and snow,
For whispering wind and purifying storm,
For the soft clouds that show the tender blue,
For the forked flash and long, tumultuous roll,
For mighty rains that wash the dim earth clean,
For the sweet promise of the seven-fold bow,
For the soft sunshine and the still, calm night,
For dimpled laughter of soft summer seas,
For latticed splendor of the sea-borne moon,
For gleaming sands and granite-fronted cliffs,
For flying spume and waves that whip the skies,
For rushing gale and for the great, glad calm,
For Might so mighty and for Love so true,
With equal mind,

We thank thee, Lord!"

FAMOUS LECTURERS HERE

Farmers Short Course Opens With Large Attendance.

The farmer's short course, which has been extensively advertised throughout this section during the last week, opened up today with a moving picture in the College Chapel entitled "Adapting Knowledge to Life".

Following the picture, Mr. H. S. Mobley, a practical farmer and a man of wide experience addressed the audience on the "Educational Use of Knowledge". Mr. Mobley was chairman at Washington of the Farmer's Organization's Legislative Committee during the adoption of a number of laws for the benefit of the farmers among which was the Farm Loan Bank, Parcel Post and Smith-Lever Bill.

Miss Bertha Dahl, a woman with a message of home appropriate for city and country alike, spoke upon the subject of "Home". Following her address there was music by the College Girls' Glee Club and Community singing.

Dean C. N. McAllister, of the Berea Normal School, presided at the first session. Tonight's session, which begins at 7 o'clock, will open with a moving picture show entitled "Farm Conveniences", and will be followed by some valuable addresses on such subjects as, "Finding a Market" and "How to Save Woman Power on the Farm".

Special music and community singing will be one of the features of the entire course.

Below is a detailed program of to-morrow's sessions: This is a school of neighborliness as well as of instruction. Come prepared to stay all day.

World News

By J. R. Robertson, Professor of History and Political Science Berea College

The Conference of the Lausanne has begun and all the delegates profess to desire peace. Turkey's representative, Ismet Pasha, has presented his country's case in a rather uncompromising manner, and England, France, and Italy seem to be acting together and following the lead of England. This will not offer much hope for the Turks, as England is intent on control of the straits between the Black Sea and the Aegean. The main hope of a settlement is to be found in Turkey's lack of powder. Her supply of guns is sufficient for war, but the ammunition is short and cannot be secured at once, unless it should be furnished by Russia. It is known that powder factories are in operation in that country and that Russia is friendly to the Turkish movement, but may not be disposed to give up her ammunition.

It is reported that the American ambassadors in Italy, Mr. Child, and in Switzerland, Mr. Grew, are in attendance at the Conference at Lausanne. Admiral Bristol is also expected soon. It is now stated that these representatives will not be observers only, but will speak in the conference whenever it is necessary in behalf of the United States and her interests. They will not have a vote, however, and must secure their purpose by influence. It is probable that their presence will be welcome and that they will have more opportunity and influence than might be expected from their official position. It is to be hoped that they may rise to the occasion and voice the real sentiments of the American people in opposition to Turkish massacres and Turkish ideals of nationality.

The Supreme Court of the United States has just decided a case pertaining to the right of Japanese to become citizens of the United States by naturalization. The laws of the United States have conferred citizenship to American born and to immigrants belonging to the white races. This case grew out of the claim of a couple of Japanese in Hawaii that they were of the white race. The decision pertains to that point alone and involves an interpretation of the United States law and an analysis of racial characteristics. The opinion rendered by Justice Sutherland maintains the established view that no Japanese are white as the term is understood. The decision is tactfully worded and need have no effect of arousing animosity in Japan. The some people think the Japanese should have the right of becoming citizens, that is not the law, nor has it ever been.

An unfortunate scene occurred in the Mexican Parliament during the week in connection with the discussion of a bill to regulate the oil interests. The foreign minister made known a correspondence with the American "charge d'affaire" in Mexico, in which the latter made suggestions regarding the kind of bill that would be acceptable to the United States. It is believed that such suggestions were made in a friendly spirit and in accordance with a desire of many Mexicans to know what would help to bring about a recognition of Mexico by the United States. President Obregon, however, referred to it in an address before Parliament as an unwarranted interference with Mexico's affairs, and the address was received with wild approval. It is to be hoped that the better feeling springing up between Mexico and the United States may not be reversed.

Lord Reading has recently opened the Parliament in India. His speech was tactful and calculated to quiet any spirit of discontent. England's problem in India is a hard one, and will require the best of statesmanship to solve. As a result of the war the population of India moved in the war, England was obliged to make promises of more self-government, and may be called upon to keep her promise. What may be done, however, will not satisfy a large part of the population who have been stirred up from various sources. It is believed that the removal of England's presence would be disastrous to the welfare of India and some plan of adjustment must be found.

WASHBURN WRITES FROM AFRICA

The following letter from H. M. Washburn, a missionary in Africa, will read as one from a co-laborer in an unfinished task to many in Berea. Mr. Washburn is no stranger here and his work in Africa is of no small interest to those who have kept him and his family in mind since their visit here last summer.

Bulape Station, Sept. 16, 1922.

Dear Friends in Berea:

You will all be interested to know that we have made almost a record trip to our home in Africa. As you know we sailed from New York the first day of July and landed in Antwerp the twelfth, and there we had a busy seven days doing some shopping and then we sailed again the 20th for the Congo. Our voyage was pleasant all the way, for the sea was on its good behavior. As we came down into the tropics the sun was warm and added its part to the voyage. It was unusually cool for that part of the world, in fact, the very day we crossed the equator we found our coats and sweaters comfortable. But when we reach Matadi we found there that the captain had made no mistake but brought us to the same hot country.

In Matadi, the port of entry, we had a delay of five days and then got to our places on the little Congo train. I bought a lantern and had it filled with oil before we started.

The others began to ask why the lantern, but we had good use for it before the day was finished. After making good time all the morning and thinking that we were going to reach our journey's end before dark we came to a freight wreck on the line and were held up for hours so that when we reached our destination it was one thirty in the morning. Just remember that there is no provision made in the coach for light unless the passengers make the arrangements themselves. So you see our lantern came in handy.

At Stanley Pool we had to wait another five days for the boat to take us up the river. We had twenty days on the river before we reached our Mission Station at Luebo and then we waited there four days for our porters. We came on to Bulape in two days by the path journey.

We are indeed glad to get back to our work, and the reception that we had was enough to make our hearts burn with a desire to serve these people though they had been cold before which we assure you they were not. One hundred and fifty men came 70 miles on the trail to help us with our baggage and to carry Mrs. Washburn and the children. I used my bicycle which was made possible by the gift of the Missionary Society of the Union Church. So that gift which was put into a sewing machine for Mrs. Washburn and the remainder was put with some other funds and bought the bicycle.

In the meeting of the station we were given the work of training the young men who have come to study for the ministry and we will now be busy planning and teaching as this work has never been organized before because of the rush of other work. I will try and write you more about it later.

We have found our fellow workers in good health and the work in good condition. Some of our old native friends have been called over the river while we were away and we shall miss them but most of the familiar faces are here and we are glad to receive them. One old man of whom I told you while I was there, an old medicine doctor, and chief of a large village who gave it all up and his plural marriage as well to be a Christian and whom I baptized last term, came six miles to meet us on the road. We were indeed glad to see him and to hear that he had been living true to his profession all these months. His face shows that he is in touch with the Holy Spirit for it simply shines when you speak to him of the Kingdom.

Billy had a little fever as we came up the river but it did not amount to much and today Margaret has a little fever. We are treating her and she is now normal so we do not think that it is going to amount to much. Mrs. Washburn and I so far have had none but it is rather to be expected as we had several mosquito bites as we were coming up the river.

We often think of all of you and are glad that we had such a pleasant stay among you last winter. Pray for us that we may be used more this term than ever before. May God bless you all.

Your Friend,
H. M. Washburn.

BEREA Y. M. C. A.

The Sunday evening meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was led by Professor Dix. He read the parable of the talents for the scripture lesson, then he said that the students come to Berea to get an education, but how is the education they are receiving to be used? Only about one half of the cost per student in dollars and cents is paid by the students; the remainder is paid by donors, etc. The gifts are usually made with the understanding that they are to be spent in developing the youth of the Southern Highlands as far as possible. The majority of our students should go back to their homeland, and take to those who have not had the privilege of going to school the good things which they have received here in school.

The question which arises is, "What can we do if we go back?" Probably the most important thing is to be a good leader. There are plenty who will follow if they have a good leader. The students who have gone back into ten of the mountain counties of Kentucky have an opportunity to achieve very much for their counties as a whole.

Berea College and Allied Schools are putting on a "County Achievement Contest." Ten mountain counties of Kentucky have entered. It began August 1st and lasts for seventeen months. A first prize of $3,000 will be given to the county winning first place and $2,000 to the county winning second place. Judge Bingham, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, is financing it, and Berea is putting on the program. So far the ten counties have organized sixteen new Sunday-schools, five new churches, one hundred new community clubs, and voted two road bonds. Also three days of road working was done and one radio set installed. After the contest the ten counties are to be organized into a league carrying the work which has been started.

The type of work mentioned is very beneficial, and the students can be of great service in putting this work on, especially if they happen to be from any one of the ten counties. The students who are here now can help in a similar work when they go back. One thing, they should be leaders and the time to prepare for this is while we are in school. Learn to be a good leader while here and put it into practice now and also after finishing school.

CONDEMNING OURSELVES TO DEATH

Most of us, providentially, start off in life with good bodies and minds. These are given us by our parents who feed us, clothe us, send us to school and make us study and allow us to play. They prepare the physical, mental and moral structure, laying down the foundations on which we later should continue to build. What poor builders so many of us are. As a rule, the only building we do is mental, and some of us are even too lazy to do that. The moral edifice depends a good deal upon our environment, our ideals and our will-power. In the main, we adopt habits of thought and action which are morally good in our relations with our fellowmen.

Physically, however, most of us cease building when we get out into the world away from parental love and care; away from home life and playmates; away from the critical eyes of our friends, and we go off on a tangent of indifference, deceit and pride. The body, our most priceless possession, we treat with the greatest disrespect, greatest ignorance, greatest carelessness and greatest abuse. Why should this be so? Is it because the care of it is left in our own hands? Most of us think we are too busy with other things to bother about it until it begins to complain from misuse; to wear out; to break down. Then we blame providence for visiting us with affliction and ill health. We are too vain and lacking in intelligence to blame ourselves.

When we get away from the play-life of childhood; away from the nurture of mother love and strike out for the open road, we have strong bodies built up by clean, healthful exercise and by clean, healthful food. A perfect machine in good running order soon to be torn down by abuse, neglect, indifference, laziness and

FOOTBALL

In spite of the cold weather quite a number witnessed the games Monday afternoon on the Main Athletic Field. In the first game College defeated Vocational 45 to 0, and in the second game Academy was victorious over the Normal by a score of 26 to 0.

In the first game Vocational started with a crippled team. The captain had failed to appear for regular practice and consequently was not allowed to play. Two other members of the team "struck" in sympathy. But eleven loyal men got together, and after the first stage fright, held the College team down, not even allowing them to score in the fourth quarter. In the first quarter College took the ball straight to the Vocational goal by line bucks, and Johnston carried it over for the first touchdown. Vocational kicked to College, but on the first play College fumbled and Vocational covered the ball. But on their first play Lewis intercepted a pass and ran for the second touchdown. The College again received the kick off and took the ball down the field. Lewis again making a touchdown. In the second quarter another Vocational pass was intercepted by Johnston and another touchdown made. A completed pass by Harrison made the final score of the first half. In the second half College scored twice in the third quarter, and then was unable to hold the Vocational men. About the middle of the fourth quarter Vocational took the ball to the College goal line, but a pass was completed outside the ten yard line, and the College had the ball. From here on nothing of interest occurred, and the game ended with Vocational in possession of the ball on their own 30 yard line. Huerra, of the Vocational, showed unusual ability in catching passes and much credit should be given to the fearless little Cuban. But above all, much credit should be given the Vocational team that played Monday afternoon. Credit for never giving up even when playing at great odds and credit for showing loyalty to their own department by faithful practice.

The second game was a little more even, tho the score would not so indicate. Soon after the beginning of the game Wilson of the Normal was forced out of the play by an injured leg. The game opened with a bang when Wood-off, of the Academy, received the kick-off on his 15 yard line and then ran for a touchdown. This was a remarkable feat and is seldom done. From here on in the first quarter the playing was about even and neither side scored. In the second quarter Academy soon made the second touchdown. Then Normal received the ball from the kick-off and took it to the Academy's goal line, only to lose by an intercepted pass. Huette was the player who intercepted it and he ran for a touchdown. This was another sensational play and one seldom seen. In the second half Normal came back strong and Academy was only able to score once. Both teams showed a good style of football. Academy perhaps has the little better advantage, due no doubt to the work of themselves and thus deserve much credit for the work they do.

THE TROSPERS NEAR VERSAILLES

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Duerson, who spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Trospers near Versailles, Ky., brought back splendid word concerning the work they are doing in their school and community. Since they began work in the Sunday-school, its regular attendance has increased from an average of 20 to 75. They have 80 students in their school, and from what Mr. Duerson says, their work goes on both in and out of the school room. Mrs. Trospers, he said, was putting into actual practice with the girls in her school the things she learned in domestic science at Berea.

Berea College, Berea, Kentucky, is located on the border between the mountains and the Blue Grass. Has 140 able officers and instructors, draws to its campus 2500 students every year, a large number from every mountain state and a few from foreign countries.

The natural cost of living is low in this section, and good management gives a student the best education for ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS A YEAR.

The College, controlled by no religious denomination, cooperates with all and provides religious exercises and education. Tobacco, liquor and the carrying of weapons are strictly forbidden. All students do some manual labor, for which they receive credit on their school bills.

Students are not invited who do not believe in Berea's principles.

EXPENSES

Cheaper than Staying at Home

Berea's friends have made it possible to provide an education at a low cost. All students do some manual labor which is credited to their school bills, while many earn much of their way. These low expenses are not secured by unworthy deprivations, but students live comfortably at these rates. Half day school for those who bring least money. All applicants must make room reservations in advance by deposit of four dollars.

Beasley's Christmas Party

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

SYNOPSIS

PART I.—Newcomer in a small town, a young newspaper man, who tells the story, is amazed by the unaccountable actions of a man who, from the window of a fine house, apparently has to do with invisible personages, particularly mentioning one "Simpledoria." The young man goes to his boarding house, the home of Mrs. Apperthwaite, next door to the scene of the strange proceedings, bewildered.

PART II.—Next morning he discovers his strange neighbor is the Hon. David Beasley, prominent politician, and universally respected. Telling of his last night's experience, he is markedly interrupted by a fellow boarder, a Mr. George Dowden. Later with Miss Apperthwaite he is an unseen witness of a purely imaginary jumping contest between Beasley and a "fairy" Hammerley. Miss Apperthwaite appears deeply concerned, there apparently being no possible explanation of the strange proceedings.

III.

I do not know why it should have astonished me to find that Miss Apperthwaite was a teacher of mathematics except that (to my inexperienced eye) she didn't look it. She looked more like Charlotte Corday!

I had the pleasure of seeing her opposite me at lunch the next day (when Mr. Dowden lent me occupied with Spenceville politics, obviously from fear that I would break out again), but no stroll in the yard with her rewarded me afterward, as I dimly hoped for she disappeared before I left the table, and I did not see her again for a fortnight. On week-days she did not return to the house for lunch, my only meal at Mrs. Apperthwaite's (I dined at a restaurant near the Dispatch office), and she was out of town for a little visit, her mother informed us, over the following Saturday and Sunday. She was not altogether out of my thoughts, however—indeed she almost divided them with the Honorable David Beasley.

A better view which I was afforded of this gentleman did not lessen my interest in him; increased it rather. It also served to make the extraordinary didoes of which he had been the victim and I the audience more than ever profoundly inexplicable. My glimpse of him in the lighted doorway had given me the vaguest impression of his appearance, but one afternoon—a few days after my interview with Miss Apperthwaite—I was starting for the office and met him full face on as he was turning in at his gate. I took as careful notice of him as I could without consciously glaring.

There was something remarkably "fakine" as we say, about this man—something easy and genial and quaint and careless. He was the kind of person you like to meet on the street whose cheerful passing sends you on feeling indefinitely a little gayer than you did. He was tall, thin—even gaunt, perhaps—and his face was long rather than round, and showed and concealed something in its oddity not unreminding of the late Sir Smith Russell. His hat was tilted back a little, the slightest bit to one side, and the sparse brownish hair above his high forehead was going to be gray before long. He looked about forty.

The truth is, I had expected to see a cousin german to Don Quixote; I had thought to detect signs and gleams of wildness, however slight—something a little "off." One glance of that kindly and humorous eye told me such expectation had been no sense. Odd he might have been—God knows! he looked it—but "queer"? Never. The fact that Miss Apperthwaite could picture such a man as this "sitting and sitting and sitting" himself into any form of mania or madness whatever spoke loudly of her own imagination, indeed! The key to "Simpledoria" was so sought under some other mat.

As I began to know some of my co-laborers on the Dispatch, and to pick up acquaintances here and there about town, I sometimes made Mr. Beasley the subject of inquiry. Everybody knew him. "Oh, yes, I know Dave Beasley!" would come the reply, nearly always with a chuckling sort of laugh. I gathered that he had a name for "easy-going" which amounted to eccentricity. It was said that what the ward-healers and camp-followers got out of him in campaign times made the political managers cry. He was the first and readiest prey for every fraud and swindler that came to Wainwright, I heard, and yet, in spite of this and of his hatred of "speech-making" ("He's as silent as Grant!" said one informant), he had a large practice, and was one of the most successful lawyers in the state.

One story they told of him (or, as they were apt to put it, "on" him) was repeated so often that I saw it had become one of the town's traditions. One bitter evening in February, they related, he was approached upon the street by a ruggid, whining and shivering old reprobate, notorious for the various ingenuities by which he had worn out the patience of the charity organizations. He asked Beasley for a dime. Beasley had no money in his pockets, but gave the man his overcoat, went home without any himself, and spent six weeks in bed with a bad case of pneumonia as the direct result. His beneficiary sold the overcoat, and invested the proceeds in a five-days' spree. In the closing scenes of which a couple of brickbats were featured to high, spectacular effect. One he sent through a jeweler's show-window in an attempt to intimidate some wholly imaginary pursuers, the other he projected at a perfectly actual policeman who was endeavoring to soothe him. The victim of Beasley's charity and the officer were then borne to the hospital in company.

It was due in part to recollections of this legend and others of a similar character that people laughed when they said, "Oh, yes, I know Dave Beasley."

Altogether, I should say, Beasley was about the most popular man in Wainwright. I could discover nowhere anything, however, to shed the faintest light upon the mystery of Bill Hammerley and Simpledoria. It was not until the Sunday of Miss Apperthwaite's absence that the revelation came.

That afternoon I went to call upon the widow of a second cousin of mine; she lived in a cottage not far from Mrs. Apperthwaite's, upon the same street. I found her sitting on a pleasant veranda, with boxes of flowering plants along the railing, through Indian summer was now clear upon her features. She was rocking meditatively, and held a finger in a morose volume, apparently of verse, though I suspected she had been better entertained in the observation of the people and vehicles decorously passing along the sunlit thoroughfare within her view.

We exchanged inevitable questions and news of mutual relatives; I had told her how I liked my work and what I thought of Wainwright, and she was congratulating me upon having found so pleasant a place to live as Mrs. Apperthwaite's, when she interrupted herself to smile and nod a cordial greeting to two gentlemen driving by. They waved their hats to her gayly, then leaned back comfortably against the cushions—and if ever two men were obviously and incontestably on the best of terms with each other, these two were. They were David Beasley and Mr. Dowden.

"I do wish," said my cousin, resuming her rocking—"I do wish dear David Beasley would get a new car of some kind; that old model of his is a disgrace! I suppose you haven't met him? Of course, living at Mrs. Apperthwaite's, you wouldn't be apt to."

"But what is he doing with Mr. Dowden?" I asked.

She lifted her eyebrows. "Why—taking him for a drive, I suppose."

"No, I mean—how do they happen to be together?"

"Why shouldn't they be? They're old friends."

"They are!" And, in answer to her look of surprise, I explained that I had begun to speak of Beasley at Mrs. Apperthwaite's, and described the abruptness with which Dowden had changed the subject.

"I see," my cousin nodded, comprehendingly. "That's simple enough. George Dowden didn't want you to the family will against Cousin David. Yes, Mr. Hunchberg says, he thinks they will."

And then (as Bob told me) he went almost out of his head with joy when Beasley offered Mr. Hunchberg a cigar and struck a match for him to light it.

"But what?" exclaimed the old lady, "what in the name of de good Gawd do de chile get dem names? I'll ink to skeer me!"

That was a subject often debated between Dowden and me; there was nothing in Wainwright that could have suggested them, and it did not seem probable he could have remembered them from over the water. In my opinion they were the inventions of that busy and lonely little brain.

I met the Hunchberg family, myself, the day after their arrival, and Beasley, by that time, had become so well acquainted with them that he could remember all their names, and helped in the introduction. There was Mr. Hunchberg—evidently the child's favorite, for he was described as the possessor of every engaging virtue—and there was that lively matron, Mrs. Hunchberg; there were the Hunchberg young gentlemen, Tom, Noble and Grandee; and the young ladies, Miss Queen, Miss Marble and Miss Molanga—all exceedingly gay and pretty. There was also Colonel Hunchberg, an uncle; finally there was Aunt Cooley Hunchberg, a somewhat decrepit but very amiable old lady. Mr. Corley Linbridge happened to be calling at the same time; and, as it appeared to be Beasley's duty to keep the conversation going and constantly to include all of the party in his general flow, I struck me that he had truly (as Dowden said) "enough to keep him busy."

The Hunchbergs had lately moved to Wainwright from Constantinople, I learned; they had decided not to live in town, however, having purchased a fine farm out in the country, and, on account of the distance, were able to call at Beasley's only about eight times a day, and seldom more than twice in the evening. Whenever a mystic telephone announced that they were on the way, the child would have himself wheeled to a window; and when they came in sight he would cry out in wild delight, while Beasley has tended to open the front door and admit them.

They were so real to the child, and Beasley treated them with such consistent seriousness, that between the two of them I sometimes began to feel that there actually were such people, and to have moments of half-surprise that I couldn't see them; particularly as each of the Hunchbergs developed a character entirely his own to the last peculiarity, such as the aged Aunt Cooley Hunchberg's deafness, on which account Beasley never forgot to raise his voice when he addressed her. Indeed, the details of actuality in all this appeared to bring as great a delight to the man as to the child. Certainly he built them up with infinite care.

On one occasion when Mr. Hunchberg and I happened to be calling, Hamilton remarked with surprise that Simpledoria had come into the room without flicking his hand as he usually did, and had crept under the table. Mr. Hunchberg volunteered the information (through Beasley) that upon his approach to the house he had seen Simpledoria chasing a cat. It was then debated whether chastisement was in order, but finally decided that Simpledoria's surreptitious manner of entrance and his hiding under the table were sufficient indication that he yell understood his baseness, and would never let it happen again. And so, Beasley having coaxed him out from under the table, the offender "sat up," begged, and was forgiven. I could almost feel the splendid shaggy head under my hand when, in turn, I parted Simpledoria to show that the reconciliation was unanimous.

German Socialists Force the Resignation of Wirth and His Government.

CUNO IS NEW CHANCELLOR

Assurances of Turk Nationalists Relieve Tension in Near East—Bonar Law Wins Control of British Parliament—Supreme Court Says the Japanese Can't Be Naturalized.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT HARDING, in a letter to Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, said the public mind is shifting somewhat in regard to the prohibition enforcement, and prophesied that the Volstead act will be "liberalized." Do you think his interpretation of the signs of the times is correct?

DR. JOSEPH WIRTH, chancellor of Germany, and his entire cabinet resigned last week, practically forced out of office by the failure of Wirth's plan for reorganization of the ministry to meet the impending crisis concerning the stabilization of the mark, the reparations program and the general economic condition. He desired a coalition ministry in which the German People's party should be represented. But the united Socialist parties refused to participate in such a coalition because, mainly, the industrial leaders of the People's party insisted on their stand in favor of the ten-hour day for the workers. The abandonment of the eight-hour day, according to Hugo Stinnes and other industrial magnates, would be the solution of the problem of paying the reparations and restoring the country's industries.

Wilhelm Cuno, general manager of the Hamburg-American steamship line, accepted the task of forming a new government.

Wirth's downfall was not unexpected for his position had been growing rapidly weaker for some months and his influence was waning because of his evident lack of initiative. He failed to devise any way of carrying out his policy of fulfilling the reparations agreement and last summer he virtually abandoned it, adopting a new slogan of "bread first, then reparations." The united Socialists had been growing more and more restive and dissatisfied with the government's attitude relative to financial and economic problems, especially the grain requisition bill, and with its failure to curb speculation in the dollar and check the collapse of the mark.

SO FAR as reparations go, the new cabinet has a program already formed, contained in the recent note to the reparations commission. This received the approval of the Socialists, the Democrats and the People's party. In this note the government expressed its willingness to fulfill the program for payment of reparations in kind and the stabilization of the mark on condition that it be granted a moratorium of from three to four years and that a finance syndicate be established as recommended by the international experts to restore Germany's credit. The note says the reichsbank will make a loan of 500,000,000 gold marks ($125,000,000) to the German government if allied bankers will furnish an equal sum. This money will be used to stabilize the mark. Germany says it will make an internal gold loan, but it asks that in order to facilitate the nation's ability to pay it be given the same rights of trade as specified in favored nations treaties.

Early in the week serious food riots broke out in Düsseldorf and Cologne, where many shops were looted and soldiers and police were compelled to fire on the crowds. Smaller riots took place in Berlin and elsewhere, and it was feared the disorders would spread to the Ruhr district. There is a report that a revolution is in the air.

Germany is very scarce. The reparations commission when in Berlin recently learned that the country must get 800,000,000 marks' worth of grain during the next year.

FOLLOWING some days of genuine alarm lest war break out between the allies and the Turks, the latter gave assurances that eased the situation. Postponement of the Lausanne conference until November 1 made them decidedly suspicious of the good faith of the allies, and the insistence of Lord Curzon that Great Britain, France and Italy reach a preliminary accord on matters to be discussed, still more angered the Turks. The allied military chiefs at Constantinople were so disturbed by the prospects that they sent messages to their respective governments urging them to begin the conference speedily and quit playing politics, intimating that otherwise they declined to accept responsibility for what might happen. All the time Rafet Pasha, governor of Constantinople, under orders from Ankara was pressing the demand for full control of that metropolis without allied interference. Conditions were decidedly threatening. However, on Wednesday the allies received a note from the Nationalist government stating that it would respect the terms of the Mudania armistice agreement and would not insist on the withdrawal of allied troops from the zones delimited by that pact. The note continued: "The national government, seeing that it has assumed the duty of insuring order and security in the capital, requests the cessation of interference in the shape of control by allied troops in our internal administration."

Secretary of State Hughes instructed Ambassador Child at Rome and Minister Grew at Bern to go to Lausanne as observers of the peace conference for the United States government. Rear Admiral Bristol also will be there when his duties as American high commissioner at Constantinople permit. The cruiser Pittsburgh, bearing Rear Admiral Long, commander of our naval forces in European waters, arrived at Constantinople.

FULL returns from the British parliamentary elections held last Wednesday are not in at this writing, but it is certain that Prime Minister Bonar Law will have a Conservative majority in the commons of about 87 over all other parties. The Labor party made extensive gains, mainly in the manufacturing counties and northern towns in England and in Scotland. This despite the fact that both the Conservatives and the Georgian Liberals directed a strong campaign against the Laborite candidates. The four leaders of the chief parties, Bonar Law, Lloyd George, Herbert Asquith and John R. Clynes, chief of the Labor party, all were elected to the house. The prime minister's plurality was rather slender, and so was Asquith's. Lloyd George's group of Liberals in the house will not be large but may serve him in the making of opposition combinations.

Of the 33 women nominees the returns so far show that only two were elected. These are Viscountess Astor, former American, and Mrs. Margaret Wintringham. Both are present members of parliament. Among the men defeated was Winston Churchill, former secretary for the colonies.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI is losing no time in putting Italy on the road to recovery of her prosperity. Last week he asked and obtained from King Victor Emmanuel full power to make radical bureaucratic and tributary reforms without awaiting for parliamentary sanction. These include rearrangement of the taxation system and reduction of salaries and number of government employees, and the leasing of railroads and telephone and telegraph lines to private concerns. On Thursday the chamber of deputies began a session which the premier hoped would last only a few days. He outlined the policy of his government and the deputies and announced a revision of the electoral laws decided on by the council of ministers. It was said if the chamber did not pass the law for this reform promptly, it would be dissolved and the present law would be modified by royal decree.

The success of fascism in Italy has prompted the organization of similar movements in other lands. In Bavaria and Hungary it appears likely to take the form of royalist revolution if it comes to fruition. Recent dispatches tell of the spread of the movement in Mexico, where, as in Italy, it is designed primarily to stamp out communism.

ONE of the most important decisions handed down recently by the Supreme Court of the United States was that read by Associate Justice Sutherland last week denying to the Japanese the right to be naturalized in the United States and to become citizens of this country. One case from Hawaii and two from the state of Washington were decided together. The court held that the naturalization act of June 29, 1903, was limited by the provision of section 2, 169 of the revised statutes, authorizing the naturalization of "free white persons" and those of African birth and descent, and that the Japanese are not eligible to naturalization. It was added in the decision that "there is not implied—either in the legislation or in our interpretation of it—any suggestion of individual unworthiness or racial inferiority. These considerations are in no manner involved."

NOT in many years before has South America experienced so severe an earthquake as that which devastated large sections of Chile. The most destructive of the tremors lasted but a few seconds, but the shocks recurred during several days, each one adding to the destruction and to the terror of the inhabitants. The worst results were on and near the coast, and great tidal waves increased the devastation. A number of towns and villages were wholly or partly razed, and the loss of life may reach 1,500 or 2,000. The American Red Cross responded immediately to the call for aid, and in addition President Harding ordered two vessels to take cargoes of food, clothing and medical supplies from the Canal Zone to the stricken region. Thousands of families are homeless and destitute, and already pestilence has broken out among them.

This disaster gives sharp point to the annual roll call of the American Red Cross, now in progress. The organization is always ready to meet such emergencies, but they make sudden and enormous demands on its financial resources. For that reason every American is urged to buy a yearly membership.

SO-CALLED Progressive Republicans who are members of the present congress or who were elected members of the Sixty-eighth congress, together with other prominent members of that wing of the party are said to be arranging a conference at which they will plan for open revolt against the leadership of President Harding and dictation of the "conservatives." According to dispatches from Washington some of the issues upon which they expect to unite are: Repeal of drastic provisions of the Cummings-Esch transportation act; revision of the tax laws, levying higher rates upon big incomes, both corporate and individual; radical curtailment of governmental expenditures; recognition of the soviet Russian government; curbing of the powers of the federal reserve board; revision of the recently enacted tariff; amnesty for political prisoners; living wage guarantee for labor under the jurisdiction of the government; legislation to curb the use of the injunction in labor disputes; a more liberal policy in the extension of credit to farmers.

WILLIAM BROSS LLOYD, millionaire, and eighteen other members of the Communist Labor party, convicted of violating the Illinois espionage act, lost their last chance to evade punishment when the state Supreme court refused to extend the stay and issued a mandate directing execution of the prison sentences imposed on them two years ago, and collection of the fines.

Last Thursday evening Miss Nell Case, of West End, entertained a number of old class mates, most of whom were Vocational graduates of the class of '19. Everybody was hilariously loaded for the evening. Much rook playing, with "masculine and feminine" bets, much pop corn popped and made, servants and man-servants served the sturdy players—continually—fruits and candies. The method of being served as the game proceeds, would probably remind some of the Pre-Volstead Era. The young ladies were: Onie Silvers, Magdalene Richardson, Naomi O'Rourke, Ruth Quillen, and the young men were, Crawford Lynn, Keith Crawford, Horace Fitzpatrick and Bill Reesie. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper were referees and also participants in the game. We are very grateful to Miss Case for such a delightful party. Classmates.

BIG BEET

Jake Herrdon, Jr., drove into town Wednesday and left some of his fine stock beets at the County Agent's office. One of these beets weighed 9 pounds and measured 26 1/2 inches in length. One of these beets makes a good meal for an ordinary cow as succulent part of the ration.

The County Agent states that every farmer should grow a few stock beets to feed his cows on during the winter to keep up the milk flow. The Agent has been promoting beet growing for more than two years.

The Need of Country Communities

Social and economic betterment are terms more widely used in discussing the needs of cities and country communities than any others in our modern life. Many organizations of various kinds have been perfected to carry out some phase of social and economic betterment.

Social welfare leaders of Kentucky held a conference in Louisville this week to continue the discussion of child and community improvement that has been going on for the past few years. During the week of December 3 to 6 the Southern Cooperative League for Education and Social Service, a successor to the Southern Sociology Congress, will meet in Nashville, Tenn., to discuss the same general subject in all its phases as it relates to the entire Southland. These conventions are good. They often end in resolutions and the endorsements of high-sounding programs of action and never get any farther. And again, such conventions end with a concrete and constructive program with some one designated to put it over. We can never say that these conferences do no good, even if they begin and end in theory, for visions, ideals and theories must precede far-reaching action. It often happens that thru the beautiful flights of oratory of a convention speaker some "nut-head" goes back home and actually endeavors to put into practice those things talked about. When he begins his work, he has much opposition, because he has not attempted it in the conventional way; but as he is a person with an individuality, he must do some of it in his own way. If he succeeds, he becomes a Henry Ford, who was a blank failure in the eyes of specialists until he crammed his success down their throats. Henry Ford defied all of the orthodox principles of his profession and even went contrary to the laws of mechanics and science, yet "the dog-gone invention of his keeps rattling on," to the apparent satisfaction of millions of American citizens.

Now back to the subject of community welfare. What the rural communities of America need is, not fewer country life and social welfare conventions, but more "nut-heads" who have the audacity to put some of those theories into practice; more community leaders who are willing to hit the trail of hard work and put the job over. Let us have the audacity to suggest two needs of rural communities. The average country community needs what might be called a community consciousness, not the individualized life, but the community life which aims to benefit all the people at the same time. This life should fight against illiteracy, poverty, crime and disease as one body. It should launch social evangelism that will secure a larger and better life for every soul in the community. It should make suggestions to and cooperate with all other existing agencies for education and human advancement. This can be done only thru community groups acting as a body. The individual who lives to himself and has no particular interest in the advancement of his neighbors is a poor citizen. He does not have the social consciousness. He will not make any special efforts for the community's welfare.

We, as rural people, have yet to learn that the community is a working unit and should be organized as city life is organized, and should assume a responsibility for everything that happens in the community. This applies, of course, to small towns as well, for in the United States census small towns are included in the rural population.

The average rural county has never taken an inventory of itself and appraised the value of its own stock. It has considered for many years that it was either poor or rich, as the common understanding has been, and has never determined by actual experiment whether or not its conditions can be improved.

The first great need of any people is a community consciousness; the second great need is a community leader with a vision, who is willing to do some hard work as well as dream.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, the Death Angel has for the first time invaded the ranks of the Woman's Club, taking, on the tenth instant, our dear fellow member, Mrs. Charles B. Holder, therefore,

RESOLVED That this painful dispensation of Providence deprives us of the companionship and help of one of our earliest and most faithful members, who, in spite of long-continued frail health, rendered efficient service both in private and official capacity, a devoted wife and mother, and one who was a power for good in the community.

RESOLVED That we join in a heartfelt expression of our deep sympathy with the bereaved husband, children, other relatives and near friends of the departed, with the earnest hope that He who "tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" may ever be present with solace and comfort.

RESOLVED That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the club, and that copies be furnished to the immediate family of the deceased and to The Berea Citizen.

THIRD ANNUAL BANQUET

The third annual Banquet of the Scaffold Cane School, Berea, will be held Saturday, November 25, at 6:30 p. m.

We remember all of the good eats, laughs, and smiles last year. The time is here for us to have more eats, laughs, and miles of smiles. There will be a radio concert. Hear the music from Cuba and places in our own land we call U. S. A. Send your order for a reserve plate by Wednesday, Nov. 22, as we can accommodate only a limited number of people. First orders first served. The price per plate is $1.00. Come and have a good time with us.

RHYMING

This is something inoffensive,
Not a word of church or state—
Just some rhymes I've strung together,
For I've written none of late;

And I write lest I forget the Rhymes and jingles I have known,
And this meter strikes my fancy,
Tho it may not strike your own.

Rhymes and meters are the Devil
When they're running in the brain,
And unless they're put on paper,
They will drive a man insane!

Therefore, when you see a poet,
Do not shoot him on the spot—
But remember he's a poet,
And the crazy man is not.

THE UNION CHURCH

Rev. Earl F. Zeigler, Pastor
Sunday morning service 11 a. m.
Subject, "Christian Hospitality."
Text, Matt. 14:16. "They Have No Need to Go Away." Sunday night service 7 p. m. Subject: "How Jesus Read His Bible." This is a sermon in commemoration of universal Bible Sunday, which is being celebrated thruout the churches of the world on this date.

The Thursday night prayer meeting as usual at 7:30 p. m. Subject, "Modern Christian Epistles."

The Church Invitation:
To all who mourn and seek comfort, to all who are tired and need rest, to all who are friendless and need friendship, to all who are lonely and want companionship, to all who are hopeless and want sheltering love, to all who desire to worship and find intercourse with the Friendly Power behind the world—

The Union Church of Berea opens wide its doors and in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, bids you come to the services next Sunday. Members, workers, students, the people of the community, the stranger within our midst, all are welcome.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL
Receives Highly Satisfactory Response on First Day's Work

At a meeting of the solicitors for Red Cross subscriptions held at headquarters last night, it was demonstrated conclusively that interest in the work that Red Cross is doing in this community is greater even than in previous years. Although many people were not seen in the Sunday canvass, the total subscriptions received amounted to $1,174.50.

Last Sunday thirty-two solicitors canvassed every street in Berea. It was such a fine day that many people were not at home. John Dean thinks that not more than half the people of the town have been seen. The work will be pushed this week and everybody will be given an opportunity to have a part in this service.

The need for relief in our community is greater than it has been for three years. Many families already are out of work and in need of the necessities of life. Miss English, the social worker, is now busy every hour of the day ministering to the needs of those in need. Financial relief is not needed in every case, but the need for such assistance is and will be great.

The contributions made on the Sunday canvass are as follows. These will be increased on every street and increases will be published later. It seems sure that the aim of $1,800 for the year's work will be reached.

Jackson street	$310.00

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

The Woman's Club met in groups on November 1, Group I with Mrs. Richardson, Group II with Mrs. Allen, and Group III with Mrs. Rigby. In each group a report of the Danville Convention of Women's Clubs was given by the delegate attending. Everyone agreed that the meeting was an inspiration and all appreciated the courtesy shown by the Danville Club.

In Group II Mrs. Frost discussed the Social Problems of the Young People of Berea. Favorable comment was made on the socials now being held each Monday night. The Musical Department of Group III rendered a varied and interesting musical program in which quite a number participated.

At the general meeting of the club held on November 15, at the home of Mrs. Baird, a partial report of the physical examinations of the Public School children now being held was given.

Resolutions in memory of our beloved and faithful member, Mrs. Edith Holder, who was called from our midst into the Great Beyond on November 10, were read and adopted.

Plans for the annual gift shop to be held December 11 and 12 were discussed and perfected.

The club is greatly indebted to the Health and Social Hygiene Committee for the pleasure of hearing Dr. Anna Veach, Head of the Child Welfare Work of Kentucky, on what her department is doing to improve health conditions among the mothers and children of our State. She spoke of the high death-rate of infants, due largely to improper care. She also spoke at length on what had already been accomplished in various sections of the State, and mentioned that in a short time a health nurse was coming to Madison county to cooperate with Miss Guinn, the county nurse, in holding Baby Conferences thruout the county.

Take Chiropractic Adjustments and KEEP SMILING

It is easy for a well person to be happy. The sick suffer and there is little chance to smile joyfully when pain gnaws and sickness depresses the spirit. There is hope for the sick to get well and keep well in CHIROPRACTIC

Thousands are finding full restoration to health in chiropractic adjustments. Should you consult your chiropractor, you too might be equally successful. Science is always on the move. So do not dismiss the science of Chiropractic, with a passing thought. Investigate its merits. Let it be known to your Chiropractor that you want full information and same will be given you. And a few adjustments convince you that chiropractic will remove the CAUSE of "Dis-EASE" and restore you to normal health, in a natural way, regardless of what disease you may be suffering from.

COLLEGE GIRL GETS $20 GOLD PIECE

Dr. J. H. Broom, of Kannapolis, N. C., pastor of the First Baptist church, gave a short talk in Chapel this morning. He made a proposition to any girl in the College who felt that she needed money to continue school this year to come to the platform and get a $20 gold piece. There was some hesitancy, but finally Miss Reba King summoned enough courage to go forward and get the $20. It was no fake, but a real $20 gold piece.

Dr. Broom is a graduate of the Baptist Seminary at Louisville, Ky., and is now writing a book entitled, "In the Mountain Region." He considers Berea the greatest motive force for righteousness and progress in the mountain section.

POULTRY POINTERS FOR NOVEMBER

It is now time to dispose of all surplus stock and put the birds in winter quarters. Male birds for next spring breeders should be purchased now to insure a good selection.

Roup and Chicken Pox

These two diseases, which are usually found associated, are the most common diseases found among adult fowls in Kentucky. These diseases very often start at this time of the year and continue through the winter, keeping the egg-production down and lowering the profit from the flock. In many cases the trouble is caused by damp houses, over-crowding or lack of ventilation. Each bird should be allowed four square feet of floor space if they are confined, and never less than three and a half feet under any circumstances. For ventilation it is a good rule to allow one square foot of south front opening to each 10 birds. If you wish to remodel your houses to avoid these troubles, write to your county agent for Extension Circular 107 on "Housing Farm Poultry."

For treatment all sick birds should be removed from the flock and Copper Sulphate, at the rate of one ounce to 10 gallons of water, should be kept in the drinking water. Also give it to healthy appearing birds for 3 days. For individual treatment clean the birds nostrils thoroughly by washing with lukewarm salt water and then dip the head in same. Apply kerosene in the nostrils with a medicine dropper or feather. If chicken pox scabs are found on the comb or canker in the mouth, the scabs should be removed and buried and the sores painted with tincture of iodine.

Potassium permanganate, which is recommended in the calendar, is a good remedy, but since it loses its strength so rapidly, copper sulphate is recommended in its place.

The Veterinary Department of the College of Agriculture, Lexington, Ky., has worked with vaccines for these diseases. They have found that the results of vaccination are satisfactory when the vaccine is prepared from material collected from the infected birds out of the flock to be vaccinated. If interested in using the vaccine, write your county agent for further information. It is impractical to vaccinate flocks of fewer than 100 birds.

Monthly Report

Don't forget to copy your November egg record on one of the frank post cards and mail the first of December to your county agent. Send your card in whether your hens lay well or not.

Conway, Ky., Nov. 7, 1922

Dear Mr. Spence: There are twenty-six boys and girls in my school and community who wish to become members of the Junior Agricultural Club.

Please send me the enrollment cards, for we wish to organize our club as soon as possible.

Respectfully,
Eva R. Cummins,
Teacher, Conway School

JUNIOR CLUBS

We want a Junior Agricultural Club in every school district or at least one for every three districts. For example, Davis Branch, Royal Oak, and Disputanta are all uniting in one club with Clear Creek church as headquarters. Walnut Grove, Scaffold Cane, and Pleasant Hill are uniting, with Scaffold Cane as headquarters, meeting at Scaffold Cane Friday afternoon for organization, at Clear Creek Friday night.

Write county agent for supplies to organize a club.

THANKSGIVING

Altho Thanksgiving does come but once a year and brings with it the spirit of joy and bounty, it does not mean extravagance. Deep down in her heart, every housewife is giving thanks for Thanksgiving because it is a day on which she can display her hospitality. Yet let us remember that hospitality does not attempt to give what it does not have. This is the one time of the year the housewife wants to make her dinner as attractive as possible. Not to have turkey and all that goes with it at Thanksgiving time would greatly disturb, if not upset, many households. However, it is possible to have very attractive and really nice dinners—dinners for which one could be truly thankful—with not too much strain on the family funds and rush on the part of the housewife.

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, mother has already begun to plan for her dinner and Granny is searching thru her own home-made books for her particular recipes for pumpkin pie, sauces, and other good things. If any of them are mislaid and cannot be found, perhaps some of the following could be used: First, let us see what we shall have for dinner. If one happens not to have raised turkeys, why not substitute a capon "roasted to a turn," a baked ham, or a rich chicken pie. If a fowl is chosen, a good dressing and a smooth, brown gravy should accompany it.

Since the relish which is served with the meat is often the making of the meal, great care should be used in selecting it. Ordinarily cranberries form this dish, but if a pork or lamb roast is served, apples may be used to a better advantage.

Then, there are many vegetables which are to be had and which can be made into such appetizing dishes that they might rightfully grace the table. Either sweet or Irish potato croquettes, baked or scalloped corn, stuffed onions, creamed peas, carrots creamed with cheese, and cabbage, celery, and tomatoes used either raw in salads or cooked in the many ways.

Pies are indispensable. They are the chosen Thanksgiving dessert. The pumpkin pie, of course, leads them all. The mince pie, I'm not so sure belongs to the Thanksgiving feast, but rather to Christmas. Then apple pies of all kinds are always good.

The thoughtful and thrifty housewife will have plenty of sweet cider for her dinner.

Whether you roast, bake, or broil the turkey, cook it for three quarters of the time on its breast. This permits the heat to cook the heaviest part of the bird slowly as the bony part of the bird receives the intense heat.

Roast Turkey

Rub entire surface with salt, and spread breast, legs, and wings with a mixture of one-third cup of butter and one-fourth cup of flour creamed together. Dredge the bottom of the pan with flour. Place in hot oven, and when flour on turkey begins to brown, reduce heat and baste every fifteen minutes until baking is finished, which will take about three hours. Use one-half cup of butter melted in one-half cup of boiling water for basting. After this is used baste with the fat in the pan. Pour water in the pan from time to time to prevent burning.

Fillings

There are many fillings that can be used for the turkey. This moist bread stuffing is a very good one and one that can be varied by the addition of seasonings.

Use stale bread from which only the brown crust is cut. (If corn bread and wheat bread are used in equal parts, the result will be better. Break into small pieces and pour over it lukewarm milk, (water may be used). Let stand until well softened, then squeeze as dry as possible. Put into bowl, stuff it up with a fork and add one-half teaspoonful of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of sage, one teaspoonful of salt and one-half cup of melted butter. Beat well together. Do not let stand long before cooking.

Sausage Stuffing.—Add one quarter pound of sausage to moist bread stuffing, and omit the butter.

Oyster Stuffing.—Add either one cup of fresh or one-half cup of canned oysters, which have been finely chopped.

Celery Stuffing.—Add to the moist stuffing one cup of finely cut celery which has been parboiled.

Apple Pie

2 c. apple pulp
2 eggs
¾ c. sugar
1 tsp. butter
1 tsp. cornstarch
1 lemon
Stew tart apples and put thru a sieve. Add the butter to the apple pulp while hot, beat yolks of eggs and sugar together, add them and the grated rind and juice of the lemon to the apple. Stir in the cornstarch, blended with a little cold water. Lastly, fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites. Bake in pastry lined pan for one-half hour.

Pumpkin Pie Souffle

1½ c. steamed pumpkin
¾ c. brown sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. ground ginger
¼ tsp. salt
3 eggs
2 c. rich milk
1 tsp. butter
1 c. whipped cream
 Mash pumpkin thru a sieve. Add sugar, salt, beaten egg yolks, milk, and spices, stir until blended. Cook until thickened. Add melted butter. Cool slightly and add stiffly-beaten whites of eggs. Pour into a baked pie crust, and cook slowly until mixture is well set. Let cool. When ready to serve heat up the whipped cream very stiffly, sweeten to taste with powdered sugar. Pile on top of pie.

Cranberry Jelly

3 c. cranberries
1½ c. water
2 tbsp. gelatin
1 c. sugar
¼ tsp. lemon juice
Cook cranberries in water until tender. Rub thru a sieve. Soak gelatin in one-half cup of sauce. Heat the remaining sauce to boiling point, and pour upon the gelatin. Add the sugar and lemon juice. Turn into a mold and chill.

This might also be used as a salad if melted in individual molds. Turn the jelly onto a crisp lettuce leaf. Sprinkle with chopped celery and nuts. Add a spoonful of dressing on top of this.

Pure Religion.

Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the widow and the fatherless in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.—James 1:27.

OBITUARY

The death angel visited the home of G. W. Craft on October 24, 1922, and took his companion. Aunt Nan was a true Christian woman. She left a bright testimony to her husband and friends. She was 74 years old October 23. During her sickness she talked of her home above and loved ones who had preceded her to the Great Beyond. She leaves one son, Louieida Parrette, of Bond, and a brother, A. H. Johnston, of Oklahoma, beside a host of nephews, nieces, and many to mourn her loss, as she was loved by all who knew her. Aunt Nan is gone but not forgotten.

Thanksgiving Hymn Well Liked at Birth But Now Forgotten

The first presidential Thanksgiving proclamation was that of President Washington in 1789 on the occasion of the adoption of the Constitution, the day, curiously enough, being November 26—the date of celebration of 1863. This latter was the real forerunner of our national Thanksgiving day. Occasional and special times of thanksgiving had often been appointed by different Presidents, but the year 1863, famous for its decisive national victories, marked also the beginning of the annual series of Thanksgiving days.

The great victories of Gettysburg and Vicksburg were really the cause of Lincoln's proclamation, and his example has been followed by all his successors until the annual festival has become one of our national institutions.

The proclamation of 1863 was remarkable as the first of a series, extending now over fifty years. It was also noticeable because it was the occasion of a thanksgiving hymn by the famous Reverend Doctor Muhlenberg of St. Luke's hospital, New York city. He is well known as the author of the familiar hymn, "I Would Not Live Alway," and a poet of no small repute. Mr. Lincoln's glowing words met his eye and struck a responsive chord in his heart. A noble Thanksgiving hymn was the result, a hymn which at the time was often sung, but is now comparatively forgotten. It was published with appropriate music, and even yet is suitable for use on similar occasions.

The hymn contains nine stanzas, with chorus, and takes up in order the various causes for thanksgiving mentioned in Mr. Lincoln's proclamation. The original title was "Give Thanks All Ye People," the first verse being as follows:

Give thanks, all ye people, give thanks to the Lord,
Alleluia of freedom with joyful accord;
Let the East and the West, North and South roll along,
Sea, mountain and prairie, one thanksgiving song.

Chorus
Give thanks, all ye people, give thanks to the Lord,
Alleluia of freedom, with joyful accord.

As the hymn was suggested by Mr. Lincoln's call upon the nation to give thanks, Doctor Muhlenberg spoke of it as "The President's Hymn," but would not permanently offer such a title without Mr. Lincoln's approval. Mr. Robert B. Minturn, a prominent member of Doctor Muhlenberg's congregation, was greatly pleased with the poem, and sent a copy to the President, with whom he was personally acquainted, asking permission to name the hymn as the author desired. Mr. Lincoln telegraphed back: "So let it be."

In July, 1865, Dr. Horace Bushnell published in "Hours at Home" an article attacking the well-known hymn, "America," as an unworthy and really humiliating effusion—as a political anthem. Doctor Bushnell thus refers to Doctor Muhlenberg's production:

"The hymn and air that were given to the public by Doctor Muhlenberg a short time ago appear to have missed the accident of being fairly born, and for that reason have not succeeded. The want of good accident here is fatal, but the hymn has real merit. It was too long and included three or four verses that could have been omitted with advantage. Otherwise it might have stuck and would have had a fair chance of success; for the music, which we know only by the eye, and never heard in a public performance, appeared to have a look of promise."

The next known reference to this hymn occurs in connection with the observance of the fiftieth convocation of the University of Illinois, on November 20, 1913. The Alumni Quarterly says: "Touches of the unusual were added to the exercises by the singing of a forgotten hymn, dedicated to Lincoln in 1863 by Reverend Doctor Muhlenberg. The hymn, which had not previously been sung in public, was discovered by Professor Dodge in a contemporary issue of the New York Tribune."

Some Reasons Why the Farmer Should Keep Thanksgiving

Just now, apart from our knowledge of food secure, perhaps some of us feel it necessary to fall back upon the private reasons for thankfulness. Each one has some bit of personal well-being that can be brought out and rubbed up and admired just to keep our home circle happy this Thanksgiving day. Each one knows their own cause for content, even where it is so commonplace as not to be distinctly visible to others. Especially this year we mustn't lose sight of the personal bright spots on account of their every-day character.

A person was once visiting a friend whose home commanded a beautiful stretch of mountain scenery. It was, in fact, a magnificent view. "What a wonderful outlook you have here," he remarked to his host. "I am sure if I lived here I should spend most of my time viewing the landscape." "Why, I never thought of it that way," his host replied. "I never considered it anything remarkable. I have simply taken it as a matter of course."

Thousands of people who live in the country enjoy a treasure which is denied to millions of their fellowmen—the blessing of good, pure, out-of-door air, fragrant in spring and summer with perfume of flowers or new-mown hay, and in fall and winter laden with crisp, life-giving ozone.

No one enjoys more blessings and treasures of this kind than the man or woman on the farm. He or she is inclined to be of a complaining nature, is apt to find fault that life on the farm is so hard and composed so largely of drudgery. Furthermore, "far away fields are always green," and the one on the farm imagines that in the city all must be ease and contentment. These imaginings, however, will not stand the test of personal acquaintance with the life that is lived in the cities by hundreds of thousands of people. Farm work is hard, but there are no easy herths in life.

The average person on the farm lives better, enjoys better air to breathe, better water to drink, better food to eat, better conditions under which to work, better health than the man or woman in corresponding circumstances in the city.

HUGHES PLANS KEMALIST PACT

U. S. May Join Allies in Treaty
With Turkey.

TO AWAIT LAUSANNE MEET

Will Be Either Separate or Communal Agreement, as Conditions Warrant —Possible Mandates May Involve American Rights.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The United States will not hesitate to negotiate one or more separate treaties of amity and commerce with Turkey and possibly with the Allied powers in order to safeguard American interests in the Near East.

While this government is confining its participation in the Lausanne conference to official observers, there will probably result from the conference one or more treaties of amity and commerce. Whether it will be necessary to negotiate a treaty with Turkey alone depends on the character of the settlement of Lausanne and particuly on the degree of independence with which Turkey emerges from the conference.

Will Protect U. S. Interests.
Whether or not the treaties, protecting American interests as outlined in the aide-memoire sent to London, Paris and Rome by Secretary of State Hughes, will be negotiated separately with the Allied powers and with Turkey or negotiated jointly, this government intends to secure adequate treaty guarantees for every phase of interest enunciated by the secretary of state.

The American official observers at Lausanne have been informed that this country has no intention of becoming a signatory to the general peace treaty that will be framed, but they have also been informed that this country will not rest content with

THE DAY OF THANKS

LOADED with all the goods the living cost allows, the home boards of the day of thanks will give full witness to the fact that the passing years do not permit to grow flaccid the long-established custom of the land. Thanksgiving Day has yet full flavor of the day when first observed upon the bleak coast where the Pilgrim fathers closed their voyage adventurous. The turkey and the pumpkin pie, cranberries and accessories will all feature as in the days gone by. And amid the fumes so redolent of cheer and peace and the sweet concord of home, will seem to fashion forth the features dear of the ones who as that board in other years were grouped. Memory that never lays aside attachments of the past will vivify the recollections of the ones whose passing meant contraction of the group, but cheer will be no less sincere because the pathos now is struck in token of mortality that time insures. From coast to coast, amid the mountains of the nearby range, amid the Rockies lifting high their peaks, where placid lie the meadows by the brook, and in the tropic Southlands and the coast that borders the Pacific, will be found the units of the nation's strength and grace, the circles of the home with sweet content as savor for the simple heartfelt feasts. In many places strange and mid the scenes of desolation and of solitude the day and dinner will be given thought.

such assurances of protection as are given in the general peace treaty.

Like German Treaty.
From the United States' standpoint, therefore, the situation at Lausanne assumes pretty much the same complexion as that which existed between this country and Germany after the failure of the Versailles treaty of passage in the senate.

The Secret of Successful Saving

If you were to ask us to tell you, in one word, the secret of successful saving for the average man or woman, we'd answer: Regularity.

That is to say: The average man or woman who deposits a regular sum at regular intervals—if only a dollar a week—will create the habit of saving; and habit makes ease and certainty.

How long does it take? Just one short year, in most cases, if the deposit is made the same day every week, and the balance is left untouched.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Madison Circuit Court
Hannah Bratcher's Hrs., Plaintiffs vs.
Hannah Bratcher's Hrs., Defendants
Pursuant to judgment and order of sale entered in the above styled action at the October term of the Madison circuit court, 1922, the undersigned commissioner will expose to public sale to the highest and best bidder on the premises at the hour of 10 a. m. on Saturday, November 25,

1922, the following described property:

A certain tract or parcel of land lying in Madison county, Kentucky, on the Berea and Big Hill turnpike, and near the city limits of the city of Berea, Ky., and on the north side of said pike, and adjoining the lands of C. B. Arnett and others, and containing about 19¼ acres, more or less. This land will be sold as a whole if the plaintiffs so desire and express themselves before the day of sale.

TERMS.—Said land will be sold on a credit of six and twelve months, the purchaser or purchasers being required to execute bonds payable to the commissioner with approved security, bearing interest at the rate of six percent from day of sale until paid. Possession to be given on January 1st, 1923. Lien retained on land to secure the payment of the purchase money bonds.
